

I am against allowing the use of cell phones aboard an airborne aircraft. To may people will NOT be concerned about their tone and language. I'm all for "Freedom of Speach," but if someone wants to use inappropriate language with children sitting near them, it could present a problem that could possibly carry over into an onboard confrontation. Sitting next to someone who may smell, drink to much, or is to big for their seat, is enough already. Thanks for the oportunity to send in comments.
